MARIAM BAIDOSHVILI – BA IN PUBLIC RELATIONS; SCHOOL OF SOCIAL SCIENCES

The University of Georgia was the first step to my independent life. Experience gained here has broadened my vision and my capabilities. I remember my first emotions associated with the university: I had to face new challenges and find my own place in the new space; I had to develop new skills, gain new knowledge and adapt to the new environment.

I overcame all the challenges with the help of my professors and university staff, who readily offered me the opportunity to work on various projects and easily adjust to hectic and adventurous university life. Parallel to my studies I worked as an intern in one of the PR companies where I gained valuable experience in applying various PR strategies.

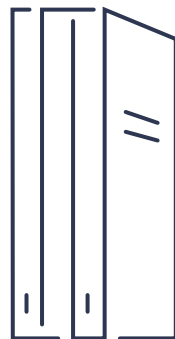

I am confident in saying that the University of Georgia aims at shaping the students equipped with theoretical knowledge and practical skills required for effective professional activity.
